

FEATURE

Outdoor water use in your neighborhood

Now that it's getting warmer outside, you may be wondering when you can water your lawn or use water outdoors. Outdoor watering is allowed seven days a week but not between the hours of 10:00am and 4:00pm under both state law and County ordinances. For all other outdoor usage such as filling swimming pools and non-commercial car and power washing, residents must follow the odd/even schedule. Even and un-numbered addresses may use water on Mondays, Wednesdays, and Saturdays, while odd addresses may use water on Tuesdays, Thursdays, and Sundays; no watering may take place on Fridays.

Gwinnett's water customers have reduced water use over the past decade by following state restrictions, fixing leaks, and installing low-flow toilets and fixtures. For more information about water conservation and details on watering restrictions, visit www.gwinnetth2o.com.

PROTECTING OUR RESOURCES

Is your yard water wise?

During the summer months, a thirsty landscape can be a burden on homeowners. However, by taking a few simple steps, you can make your yard water wise, saving time, effort, and money.

The best time to water outdoors is in the late evening, overnight, or in the early morning. During the day, wind and sun can cause up to half of the water to evaporate before it is absorbed. Also, let your plants tell you when they need water.

Overwatering can kill plants or cause them to develop shallow roots, leaving them more vulnerable to drought.

A two- to four-inch layer of mulch evens out temperature extremes, allows for better water penetration, and helps plants retain moisture. Choose fine-textured organic mulches such as dead leaves, pine straw, and pine or hardwood bark.

When selecting new plants, be sure to match their sunlight and water requirements with the planting location and group plants according to their water needs.

PUBLIC SAFETY

Burn ban now in effect

A total burn ban is in effect for all outdoor burning from May 1 – September 30, 2011. All types of outdoor or open burning are prohibited during this time period, including the burning of trees, limbs, or any other yard waste, and the use of air curtain destructors for land clearing. For unincorporated residents, please contact your trash hauler to ask about adding yard waste service.

During the months when burning is allowed (October through April), the following safety practices will apply in accordance with the County's burn ordinance:

- No burning on Sunday
- No burning when winds exceed 15 miles per hour or during an air pollution episode
- Burn piles must contain only natural vegetation

For more information about the burn ban, contact the Gwinnett Fire and Emergency Services Community Risk Reduction Division at 678.518.4980 or visit www.gwinnettfiremarshal.com.

SPLOST

Yellow River historic site gets improvements

Commissioners recently approved a contract that will provide better public access to the historic Yellow River Post Office site. Improvements to the site located on the former Hudson-Nash farmstead will include historical interpretive signage for self-guided tours, restroom building, retaining wall, walkways, erosion control, grading, parking, landscaping, picnic tables, and trash cans.

Located off Five Forks Trickum Road in southern Gwinnett County, the historic site was donated to the County by developer Scott Hudgens in 1996. The post office building and slave quarters (both built in the 1840s) as well as a barn, sit on the site that is listed on the National Register of Historic Places. The post office building has been a general store, a post office, a school, a sharecropper's house, and a barn.

Funding for the project comes from the 2005 Special Purpose Local Option Sales Tax, or SPLOST. Gwinnett County awarded the project to the lowest of eight bidders, Todd Smith Grading, Inc., for $455,132. The improvements are expected to be completed by spring 2012.

Water billing enhancements

Gwinnett County water and sewer customers can now view and pay their monthly water bills, enroll in automatic payment, sign up for e-mail notification of bills, and opt-out of receiving paper bills online. Customers can also schedule a move-in, move-out, or transfer of service, in addition to updating personal information. Visit www.gwinnetth2o.com to take advantage of these features.

AROUND GWINNETT

Gwinnett generates power from wastes

Gwinnett's Water Resources department has started generating its own electricity using methane gas, a byproduct of sewage treatment.

A new gas-to-energy facility at the F. Wayne Hill Water Resources plant near Buford can produce up to 40 percent of the plant's energy needs plus all the heat it needs to operate its anaerobic digesters. Bacteria in the egg-shaped digesters turn wastewater solids into methane gas at temperatures near 100 degrees Fahrenheit, reducing the amount of waste that goes to landfills. The gas by-product was previously burned off as waste.

Construction will be finished next fall on a companion receiving facility for fats, oils, and grease from restaurants and food service operations and producers of industrial waste. That waste will go into the digesters to increase methane production while helping to reduce clogs in County sewers. Disposal fees will be comparable to the cost of other disposal options.

Water Resources used $5 million in federal stimulus funds, a $3.5 million federal grant, and $500,000 of local water/sewer funds to build the new facilities. The County must repay $2 million over the next 20 years at 2 percent interest.

The project, known as POWER (Processing Organic Waste for Energy Recovery), won an environmental sustainability award from the Atlanta Regional Commission earlier this year.

TAX COMMISSIONER

Tax commissioner appoints chief deputy

Tax Commissioner Richard Steele appointed Mike Sweigart to fill the role of Chief Deputy Tax Commissioner. Mike joined the tax commissioner's office May 23, 2011, with a 30-year background in business and operations in the Gwinnett community. As chief deputy, Mike will be responsible for the day-to-day operations of the office. For more information, visit www.GwinnettTaxCommissioner.com.
