Gwinnett County covers 437 square miles in northeastern Georgia and is located 30 miles northeast of downtown Atlanta. Interstate 85 is the county's main artery and connects to Highway 316, I-285, and I-985. Fulton, Forsyth, Barrow, Walton, Hall, Rockdale, and DeKalb counties border Gwinnett.

Gwinnett County is Georgia's second most-populous county and one of the nation's most diverse. We consistently have a relatively low unemployment rate due to public-private economic development that brings jobs and investments to the area. Our dynamic community also combines the best of big city living with the comforts of the suburbs — arts and culture, professional sports, a variety of housing options, good schools, and nationally recognized parks and libraries.

Gwinnett County Government operates a budget in excess of $2 billion and maintains the distinction of being one of the few counties in the nation to hold AAA/Aaa bond ratings from all three major rating agencies.
