USE OF CONST.:	Customer agrees to $975 for pressure test. Customer had gas company come out and look at a gas leak. They zip tied the meter and said it was in the attic. Sprayed everything in the attic that I could see and only found 1 minor gas leak on the drip leg of the furnace. Made repair on that and no visible gas leaks. Talked to supervisor and because the meter was locked and the paper said it had to be tested, we cannot turn meter back on without doing a pressure test and getting it inspected. We need to pull a permit, do the test, and have an inspector look at it before we can turn it back on. It is an emergency, customer has no heat or hot water. Need to have a licensed technician as well.
