I. INTRODUCTION AND BACKGROUND

Gwinnett County Board of Commissioners (the County) is soliciting proposals from qualified professional services firms to provide staff augmentation to the Internal Audit Division (IA) for Information Technology (IT) audit and advisory services and other Internal Audit services as needed on an annual contract. The successful firm will generally conduct IT security audits using an acceptable risk management framework such as CIS (preferred) or NIST in the following control areas:

- User access
- Malware protection
- Incident response
- Disaster recovery
- Administrative accounts and elevated privileges
- Firewalls and perimeter defenses
- Monitoring and logging
- Security architecture and design
- Vulnerability scanning and patch management
- Applications and software management
- Helpdesk and project portfolio management
- Vendor Management
- Other areas as needed

Risk assessments, planning, and test work will be conducted throughout the year. Audit fieldwork should be completed by the end of the third quarter. The successful firm(s) will provide staffing continuity throughout the engagement to meet audit schedule deadlines. Firms ("External staff") will be required to:

- Perform risk assessments to prioritize audit work.
- Identify and document key controls specific to Gwinnett County Government.
- Develop custom, risk-based audit plans designed to provide valuable insight.
- Develop test plans to evaluate the adequacy, design, and effectiveness of controls.
- Maintain work papers to IA standards to support audit assessments and conclusions.
- Provide actionable, effective recommendations based on evidence and root causes.
- Consider best practices to offer practical, cost effective improvements when applicable.
- Use IA project management tools to store and manage audit work in a timely manner.
- Provide a secure channel or virtual environment for communication with IA.
- Follow IA guidelines and IT audit best practices.
- Collaborate with IA and support IA's audit plan objectives.
- Maintain high ethical, quality, and professional standards throughout engagements.

Beyond the IT audit program, there may be times when IA needs staff augmentation to complete additional internal audits of County operations. This will depend on the County's annual audit plan, risk assessment, and available resources, at IA discretion.

II. SCOPE OF WORK

IA reasonably expects the IT audit program to cover control activities in four to five high-level areas in a typical year with a combined total that may exceed 100 controls. Based on prior experience, IA expects total hours to range from approximately 1,400 to 1,900 hours each year including any hours allocated for engagements beyond IT audit. This is only an estimate for planning purposes. Actual hours may vary based on operations and risk. Proposers should provide their own estimates based on experience as well as the expectations outlined in this document.

External staff will analyze and evaluate controls under IA's general supervision. The County does not anticipate using significant partner or managerial resources from the successful firm. IA expects to allocate IT audit work throughout the year to minimize disruption to departmental operations and accommodate departmental work schedules. Audit work will be performed according to schedule or on-demand, depending on business needs.

The successful firm should be prepared to provide in-person staffing. Audit work will be completed at the Gwinnett Justice & Administration Center (GJAC), although fieldwork may occasionally be conducted at other operational locations within the County. The County will not reimburse external staff for travel to or from their firm's office.

General Expectations

External staff will be expected to work collaboratively with County employees in all phases of the audit. All work papers, notes, emails, documents, and any other audit evidence belong to the County and must be available to IA throughout the audit for ongoing review and document retention. All audit documentation will be housed and managed in an online project management portal provided and owned by IA, with permissions granted to external staff. External staff will be expected to exercise project management and time management skills to complete engagements within budgeted time frames. External staff should keep the management team up to date on any issues that may impact the completion of a timely audit. External staff must engage in the IA Quality Assurance process and produce deliverables to IA standards.

Staffing

External staff must have the technical expertise, experience, and professional acumen to successfully audit IT and other operational controls and must be able to effectively apply relevant auditing concepts such as audit risk and sampling to ensure audit quality and reliability. External staff should be adept at communicating technical concepts to audiences without relevant technical background and engaging in discussion that may include detailed questions, constructive criticism, or differences of opinion. Proficiency in SharePoint is desired.

IA may need staff with various levels of experience and billable rates throughout the year to achieve audit plan goals and manage costs. The successful firm will be required to maintain and follow a resource plan approved by IA. Staffing levels and expertise may vary depending on the engagement scope, type and phase of audit work, technical requirements, and available budget. The following is a summary of anticipated staffing requirements:

IT Senior Auditor

- Four or more years of recent experience conducting IT audits or internal audits, including three years leading IT audits.
- Experience conducting IT audits for at least three different medium to large client organizations.
- Active ISACA certification as a Certified Information Systems Auditor (CISA) preferred. CISA certification may be substituted with Certified Internal Auditor (CIA) or Certified Public Accountant (CPA) credentials with sufficient, relevant IT audit experience.
- Demonstrated mastery of IT audit principles.
- Demonstrated success forming and sharing evidence-based results with clients.

IT Staff Auditor

- One to three years of recent experience conducting IT audits or internal audits.
- Relevant professional certifications desired.

IT Audit Manager or Director (Security Expert)

- Five or more years of experience evaluating IT security controls and providing specific IT security recommendations, including three years leading formal IT security reviews or audits.
- Industry or governmental experience in managing IT operations desirable.
- Active certification as a Certified Information Systems Security Professional (CISSP) and/or Certified Information Systems Manager (CISM).
- Demonstrated cybersecurity and network security expertise, including knowledge of the latest risks, threats, and tools.
- Preferred: Offensive security (penetration testing) experience and/or certification as Offensive Security Certified Professional (OSCP) or Certified Ethical Hacker (CEH).

Senior Internal Auditor

- Four or more years of recent experience conducting internal audits, including two years leading internal audits.
- Experience conducting internal audits for medium to large client organizations.
- Active CIA, CPA, or CFE certification.
- Demonstrated mastery of internal audit principles.
- Demonstrated success working with clients.

The total number of audit hours per year is expected to be 1,400-1,900. IT Senior Auditor will be used primarily on most audits and should have sufficient IT security knowledge to successfully conduct engagements without additional expertise or extensive oversight. To promote efficiency, an IT Staff Auditor may be used as appropriate to request data and test controls with general supervision. The IT Audit Manager or Director (Security Expert) may be used for consultation or participation in walkthroughs and test design as needed in certain areas. For planning purposes, IA anticipates approximately 100-300 hours for the Manager or Director.

External staff should have sufficient tenure with respondent firm to validate expertise and work product quality.

Project Management

IA generally schedules assignments based on the annual audit plan. However, some engagements could occur or change on short notice. The departments may also modify work schedules or cancel engagements based on business needs. The County requires the capability and flexibility to respond to schedule changes. Respondent firms should possess sufficient depth of qualified resources.

This staff augmentation model is not expected to involve a multi-layered approach from the firm. IA expects external staff to produce clear and accurate deliverables with minimal need for review. IA may internally designate a Gwinnett County employee as senior program manager to oversee work product quality and delivery, working closely with external staff. Depending on audit work and available resources, IA may designate an additional County employee to work alongside external staff as IT senior auditor. IA personnel assigned to the engagement should be copied on all engagement communications and invited to all meetings.

External Auditors will submit detailed time summaries to support billing. Time summaries should be consistent with audit progress and deliverables as visible in the IA project management tool. Time summaries will be agreed to monthly billing invoices and used for future planning purposes. IA does not expect to be billed for re-work or onboarding resulting from turnover of firm personnel assigned to Gwinnett during an engagement.

Deliverables and Performance Expectations

External staff must exercise sound judgment and be adept at successfully working in a diverse environment with employees from all organizational levels. Audit objectivity is paramount, but audits should also be collaborative and contain results and recommendations that are fully vetted with control owners to ensure quality and relevance.

Typical IT and internal audit activities and deliverables may include, but are not limited to the following:

Develop a risk control matrix (RCM) tailored to the County operations in scope. Include a preliminary assessment of risk for each control and suggested test plans. Confirm controls with management and add or adjust controls according to IA and management input. Submit the RCM to the Division Director of Internal Audit (IA Director) for approval prior to starting test work.

Prepare detailed control narratives using information gathered at each interview, walkthrough, or observation.

Formulate and perform test plans for review and feedback from IA and the department. Effectively manage data requests to obtain timely and sufficient data while minimizing disruption to departmental operations. Follow IA sampling standards.

Document test procedures and results with logical conclusions supported by evidence. Use the IA project management tool to document all outputs from the assessment.

Promptly review each potential finding or issue with departmental management and determine its root cause. Develop practical and cost-effective recommendations to remediate control deficiencies. Maintain a list of the issues, the risks they pose, and recommendations. Periodically evaluate the effectiveness of remediation efforts.

Prepare a clear and concise draft report of background context, observations, and recommendations for review by the management team. Use the standard IA report format and vet draft reports with control owners for accuracy, validity, and management response.

Keep the IA project management tool up to date to enable accurate point-in-time summaries of the total number of controls tested, passed, and failed per domain.

IA is the owner of all work products and may choose to assign internal staff to direct, produce, or revise certain deliverables as necessary to meet project timeframes and quality standards. External staff are expected to use professional judgment, time management, IA guidance, and reasonably efficient analysis techniques to minimize waste in their successful performance of audit work.

Background Checks and Confidentiality

Responsive firms will be required to provide successful background check results for involved staff members before the engagement begins. Gwinnett County information must remain confidential and only discussed with appropriate Gwinnett County employees and other staff. By responding to this RFP, the respondent firm agrees not to disclose County-specific information learned during the engagement, including but not limited to network architecture or components, hardware or software, internal controls, processes, risks, deficiencies, weaknesses, or vulnerabilities.
